

Center for Leadership Equity And Research

Green Education, Inc.

ICUC

California Association of African-American Superintendents & Administrators

MALDEF
The Latino Legal Voice for Civil Rights in America.

National Center for Youth Law

NCLR
NATIONAL COUNCIL OF LA RAZA

OAKLAND COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS
Unlocking the Power of Oakland

PICO California

Lifting Up What Works®

PolicyLink

PUBLIC ADVOCATES
MAKING RIGHTS REAL

November 1, 2013

Mike Kirst, President
California State Board of Education
1430 N Street, Suite 5111
Sacramento, CA 95814

Re: SBE November 2013 Agenda Item #13 - LCFF

Dear President Kirst:

Many of us were privileged to work in collaboration with you on two historic changes – the passage of Proposition 30 and the Local Control Funding Formula (LCFF). In both cases, California’s most underserved communities made their voices heard in unprecedented numbers and confronted the defenders of the status quo. When Governor Brown stated in January of this year that “equal treatment for children in unequal situations is not justice,” we cheered. For the first time in California history, a Governor had the courage to speak a truth that our children and families have lived with for decades. More importantly, we believed him when he said that LCFF would correct these historic inequities in our districts and schools.

However, over the last five months, our faith has been shaken. Throughout the development of LCFF, we were repeatedly assured by the Governor’s staff that the new funding model would contain the elements necessary to truly correct local inequalities and create the deep public engagement of parents and community members necessary to make local control meaningful. These included (1) strong assurances that the supplemental and concentration grant funding would primarily benefit low-income students, foster youth, and English Learners in their schools; (2) the financial transparency required to assure the public that LCFF dollars were benefitting high-need students; and (3) the conditions necessary to foster the authentic engagement of parents, students, and community members in the development of Local Control and Accountability Plans (LCAPs) and district budgets.

The legislature ensured that provisions establishing these priorities were fixed in the final LCFF statute with implementation details delegated to the State Board of Education. This included the law’s requirement that Local Education Agencies (LEAs) “increase or improve services for unduplicated [high need] pupils in proportion to the increase in funds apportioned on the basis of the number and concentration of unduplicated pupils.”

In refining the meaning of this and other critical language through the regulatory process, we hoped that the State Board would model the broad and inclusive process it would expect to see at the local level in the implementation of LCFF. To the disappointment of many of the organizations signing this letter, the Board’s stakeholder process did not reflect the racial, ethnic, and linguistic diversity of California’s schools and communities. Instead, the process was disproportionately weighted toward feedback from Sacramento-based interest groups who represent adults working inside the public school system and who have sought the loosest possible interpretation of the language of the law.

Even more disappointing are the draft spending regulations submitted to the Board for review on November 7, 2013 (see the agenda item's Attachment #1). These proposed regulations would do little to correct the historical inequities decried by our Governor and Dr. Kirst in his 2008 paper on reforming California's school finance system. They could, in fact, exacerbate them. Rather than ensuring that the LCFF funds generated by high-need students are "spent wisely by local districts to boost performance especially among the neediest students and schools" (Kirst, Bersin, and Liu, 2008), these funds could be used to offset LEA costs in other areas and underwrite the educational programs of non-needy students.

There are four specific areas of concern related to these spending regulations:

1. First, the proposed regulations make no distinction between the core services provided to every student through the base grant and the types of supplemental services supported by supplemental and concentration funding. As a result, school districts will be free to play an unfortunate shell game. They could spend their base funding disproportionately on non-needy students, spend their supplemental and concentration dollars to provide high-need students with basic services such as their classroom teachers, and never provide them with any additional services such as reading supports, counselors, or professional development for teachers to address their unique educational needs. To prevent this result, the regulations should clarify that LEAs must proportionally spend their base funding on high-need students as required by the statute. Otherwise, our neediest students and their parents will not see any real changes in their schools.
2. Second, it makes no sense to offer LEAs three different options to prove that they are providing more or better services to high-need students by spending more on those services. Rather, the first two options—"spend more" and "provide more"—should be consolidated into a single requirement. Doing so is both consistent with the statute and avoids undermining LCFF's promise of proportionate service increases for high-need students. By itself, the "provide more" option creates a significant loophole. "Provide more" would allow LEAs to satisfy the law's requirements by providing any additional level of new services for high need students, no matter how insignificant or far below the supplemental and concentration funding levels they receive. Districts that receive tens of millions of dollars to support the needs of low-income students, English Learners, and foster youth should not be allowed to spend just pennies of those dollars on their educational needs.
3. Third, the "achieve more" option is not a demonstration of the "expenditure of funds" required by the law and should not be conflated with the expenditure regulations. This option simply has no connection to any proportionate increase in services for high-need students. Under the "achieve more" example provided in Attachment #1, page 4 of your agenda materials, a district could provide NO additional services to high-need students such as foster youth if it increased reading results by one point in the preceding two years and deemed this "significant." The district could then spend all of its supplemental or concentration dollars entirely on non-needy students, salaries, or central office expenditures without any real consequence. The promise to achieve more rightly belongs in the Local Control and Accountability Plan, not the spending regulations. Indeed, the overarching LCFF statutory structure establishes that high-need students will "achieve more" as the result of LEAs working with their communities to establish goals within the eight state priority areas and then both "providing" and "spending" more on high-need students.
4. Fourth, there is no instruction to districts on how to implement school-wide and district-wide expenditures of funding, leaving it up to LEAs to define this for themselves. This is one more giant loophole that could result in school districts diluting LCFF funding without increasing services for the needy students who generated those funds. This could be especially harmful in districts with “two sides of the track” where the funding generated by students in low-income schools is transferred to higher wealth schools and district-level expenditures unrelated to services for high-need students.

In addition to the concerns listed above regarding the spending regulations, we also have deep concerns about the proposed LCAP template and its relationship to authentic parent and community involvement in local decision-making. As currently drafted, the LCAP template fails to provide LEAs with the guidance necessary to ensure financial transparency or that the data used in establishing local goals is fully accessible to parents and the public for accountability purposes. It similarly fails to provide guidance to districts on processes and practices to elicit the input of diverse stakeholders, particularly those who have historically not been part of local decision-making. At a minimum, the LCAP should include (1) clear information on both district funding and expenditures; (2) easy access to the underlying data used to establish district-level goals; and (3) disaggregation of data and goals by school and subgroup in order to assess the impact of district actions and strategies on individual schools and groups of students. The LCFF statute calls for nothing less. Moreover, this level of information and the inclusion of basic requirements for public engagement such as language translation are critical to engaging parents and communities as ongoing partners in the Local Control and Accountability Plan processes.

From the very beginning, we believed in Governor Brown’s and Dr. Kirst’s commitment to LCFF as a historic and transformative achievement that could fix the inequities we see every day in our districts and schools. The proposed regulations have shaken that faith.

Leadership can survive many challenges but not the loss of faith in its veracity. In the coming months, the State Board of Education has the power to align the rhetoric of economic and social justice used to promote LCFF with the reality of implementation. We call on you to reject these proposed regulations and request changes, such as those offered above, in order to ensure that children in unequal situations truly benefit from the promise of Local Control Funding Formula. We stand ready to work with you in those efforts.

Sincerely,

Francisco Lobaco,	Legislative Director,	ACLU
Angelica Solis,	Executive Director,	Alliance for a Better Community
Ruben Lizardo,	State Policy Coordinator,	Alliance for Boys and Men of Color
Nicole Ochi,	Staff Attorney,	Asian Americans Advancing Justice - Los Angeles
Jay Conui,	Organizational Director,	AYPAL: Building API Community Power
Linda Galliher, J.D.,	Vice President Public Policy,	Bay Area Council
Carl Pinkston,	Secretary,	Black Parallel School Board
B. Cole,	Executive Director,	BrownBoi Project
Dr. Pamela Short-Powell,	President,	CAAASA
Maisie Chin,	Executive Director,	CADRE
Debra Watkins,	President and Executive Director,	California Alliance of African American Educators
Jan Corea,	CEO,	California Association for Bilingual Education
Ellen Wu,	Executive Director,	California Pan-Ethnic Health Network

Cynthia L. Rice,	Director of Litigation, Advocacy & Training,	California Rural Legal Assistance, Inc
Phyllida Burlingame,	Co-Convener,	California Sex Ed Roundtable
Sergio Cuellar,	Statewide Campaign Director,	Californians for Justice
Shelly Spiegel-Coleman,	Executive Director,	Californians Together
Brian Goldstein,	Policy Analyst,	Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice
Jessica Quintana,	Executive Director,	Centro CHA Inc. (Long Beach Community Hispanic Association)
Jamila Iris Edwards,	Northern California Director,	Children's Defense Fund -- California
Kenneth Magdaleno, Ed. D.,	Executive Director,	CLEAR
Manuel Criollo,	Director of Organizing,	Community Rights Campaign
Adam Kruggel,	Executive Director,	Contra Costa Interfaith Supporting Community Organization
Rev. Samuel J. Casey,	Executive Director,	COPE
Nancy Valencia,	Executive Director,	Downtown Associated Youth Services
Arun Ramanathan,	Executive Director,	ETW
Andy Levine,	Executive Director,	Faith in Community, Fresno
Oscar Cruz,	President and CEO,	Families in Schools
Sammy Nunez,	Executive Director,	Fathers & Families of San Joaquin
Barrie Becker,	State Director,	Fight Crime: Invest in Kids
Jonathan Klein,	Executive Director,	GO Public Schools
Stella Ursua,	President,	Green Education Inc.
Tom Dolan,	Executive Director,	Inland Congregations United for Change
Maria Brenes,	Executive Director,	InnerCity Struggle
Lian Cheun,	Executive Director,	Khmer Girls in Action
Adam Anderson,	Executive Director,	Kingdom Causes Long Beach
Raymond Chavarria,	Executive Director,	Latin American Community Center
Xavier Morales,	Executive Director	Latino Coalition for Healthy California
Oren Sellstrom,	Legal Director,	Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights
Abigail Trillin,	Executive Director,	Legal Services for Children
Thomas A. Saenz,,	President and General Counsel,	MALDEF
John F. O'Toole,	Director,	National Center for Youth Law
Delia de la Vara,	VP of California Region,	National Council of La Raza
Amy Fitzgerald,	Executive Director,	Oakland Community Organizations
Debbie Phares,	Executive Director,	Orange County Congregation Community Organization
Tarah Fleming,	Education Director,	Our Family Coalition
Goldie Buchanan,	Parent Organization Network Manager,	Parent Organizing Network
Akemi Flynn,	Executive Director,	People Acting in Community Together
Roberta Furger,	Director of Policy and Research,	PICO California
Judith Bell,	President,	Policy Link
Liz Guillen,	Director of Legislative & Community Affairs,	Public Advocates
Laura Faer,	Statewide Education Rights Director,	Public Counsel

Luis Santana,	Executive Director,	Reading and Beyond
Stella Connell Levy, JD,	President/Executive Director,	Restorative Schools Vision Project
Tavae Samuelu,	Education & Career Coordinator,	RYSE Center
Ashlin Spinden,	Executive Director,	Sacramento Area Congregations Together
Erica Katske,	Executive Director,	Sam Francisco Organizing Project
Bill Koski,	Youth & Education Law Project,	Stanford Law School
Mynor Godoy,	CA State Program Director,	Students for Education Reform
John R. Lee,	Executive Director,	Teach Plus Los Angeles
Dana Goodrow, MSW, MPH	Executive Director,	TeenNow California
Daniel Zingale,	Senior Vice President,	The California Endowment
Elise Buik,	Chief Executive Officer,	United Way of Greater Los Angeles
Kaile Shilling,	Coalition Director,	Violence Prevention Coalition
Kim McGill,	Organizer,	Youth Justice Coalition / FREE L.A. High School
Ama Nyamekye	Executive Director	Educators 4 Excellence
Vincent Jones	Senior Advisor	Brothers, Sons, Selves Coalition
All Members,		Building Healthy Communities: Long Beach Steering Committee
Deborah Escobedo,	Staff Attorney,	Youth Law Center

CC: Members, California State Board of Education

Karen Stapf Walter, Executive Director, California State Board of Education

Janelle Kubinec, Director of National, State and Special Projects, WestEd

Judy Cias, Chief Counsel, California State Board of Education

Christine Swenson, Director of Improvement and Accountability, California Department of Education

Nick Schweizer, Department of Finance

Cathy McBride, Governor's Office